JENEVER

Also known as genièvre, genever, peket, or in the English-speaking world as Dutch gin or Hollands (archaic: Holland gin or Geneva gin), is the juniper-flavored national and traditional liquor of the Netherlands and Belgium, from which gin evolved. Traditional jenever is still very popular in the Netherlands, Belgium and nearby French and German regions.

KOPSTOOT (HEAD-BUTT)

Traditionally the drink is served in a tulip-shaped glass filled to the brim. The drink is served cold from a bottle kept in a freezer or on the rocks. The higher-quality oude jenever and korenwijn is usually served at room temperature. When jenever is drunk with beer (normally lager) as a chaser, it is referred to as a kopstoot (head-butt).

When it became time to name his beloved tequila, Master Distiller Cirilo looked to another important part of Mexican culture for inspiration. Named for the spur of the rooster, a powerful symbol of national pride, Espolòn is a fitting tribute to the true storied culture of Mexico. We call our rooster Ramón. He's our icon and our spirit animal. Ramón leads the charge. He's not afraid to stir things up. And he can be counted on anytime you need a little spur to get things going.

PERFECT VODKA

Zubrowka Bison Grass Vodka, is a dry, herb-flavoured vodka that is distilled from rye and bottled at 40% alcohol by volume (80 US proof). Its flavour is unique and is described as having woodruff, vanilla, coconut, and almond notes.

The rye distillate is flavoured with a tincture of bison grass which also gives the spirit its yellowish color. This grass grows in the Białowieża Forest and elsewhere. A blade of bison grass is traditionally placed in each bottle of Zubrówka, though this is largely decorative.
